NI + AI = wisdom: How Doctor Vermeille is building an ecosystem for AI-literate families

Fort Lauderdale | AI Education | NI + AI = 21st Century Wisdom™

During a time in which artificial intelligence is reshaping every aspect of human life, Dr. Joseph Vermeille has found his calling: preparing the next generation and the broader community to harness AI as a transformative force for good.

Nestled in Fort Lauderdale, Doctor Vermeille Global EDTECH & Research LLC is more than just a business venture. It's a mission to arm children, families, and communities with literacy, wisdom, and critical thinking they need to navigate and lead in an AI-driven future.

Vermeille's core principle is simple ' Open in NewsBreak AI™ = 21st Century Wisdom™. Natural Intelligence, human judgment, creativity, and moral reasoning must come first.

Artificial Intelligence augments and supports, but never replaces, human thinking. This philosophy anchors everything from his teachings to his scholarly publications.

Building a philosophy of human-centered AI literacy

Vermeille's work began with a clear observation: the educational landscape was not evolving quickly enough to meet the demands of an AI-dominated future. With years of experience in information technology, education, instructional design, and curriculum development, he recognized both a crisis and an opportunity.

"Kids are naturally curious," he explains. "They are not afraid to explore technology. Our role is to guide them, to show them how AI can be a tool for creativity and problem-solving, and to keep their brains in charge."

This philosophy is the cornerstone of Vermeille's business, Doctor Vermeille Global EDTECH & Research LLC. Instead of viewing AI as a distant, intimidating force, he presents it as a smart helper that can open doors to new possibilities. The company's programs are designed to be interactive and engaging, ensuring that children see AI as an ally rather than an adversary.

"We want to make learning about AI as natural as learning to read or write," Vermeille insists. "But always with the understanding that your brain is the boss."

From scholarship to classroom: A multi-platform mission

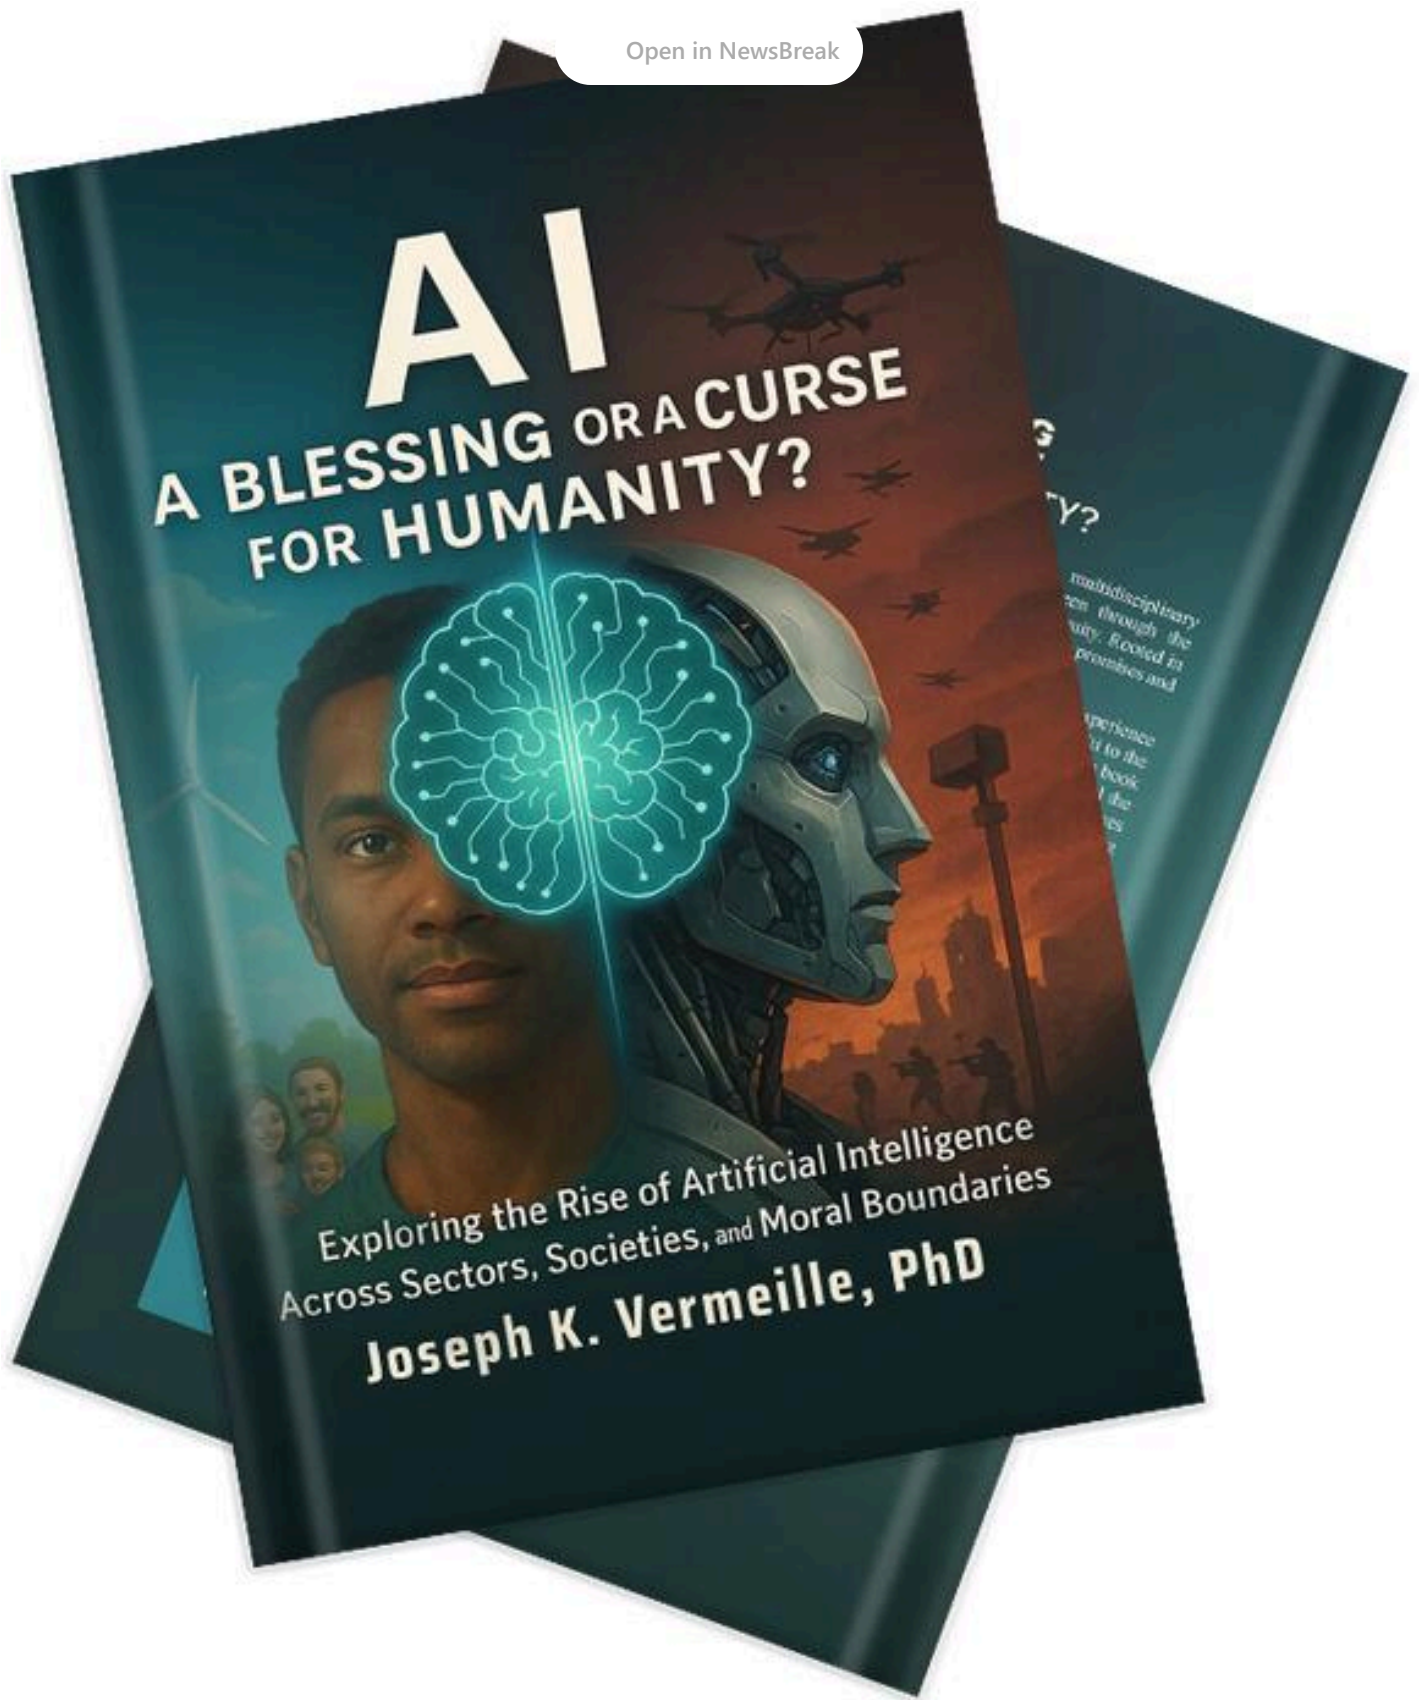

Vermeille's commitment to AI literacy extends far beyond individual programs. He is advancing the conversation through scholarly publication and curriculum innovation.

His published work includes AI, A Blessing or a Curse for Humanity?, a critical examination of AI's societal impact, and The classroom of the 21st Century, which reimagines pedagogy for an era of rapid technological change.

His children's book, AI and Me: My Smart Helper, introduces young readers to AI concepts through characters who model critical thinking and human agency.

Upcoming projects currently in development include My AI-GPS for Everyday Living (available at MYAIGPS.com, in press), a practical guide for adults and families navigating AI in daily life, and DoctorVermeilleAcademy.com (in development), a comprehensive on-line learning platform offering courses and professional development in AI literacy, 21STCentury Literacies and Application development.

Community-centered approach

Central to Vermeille's mission is preparing families, and children for AI as the most transformative technology for humanity. Open in NewsBreak This commitment manifests through multiple channels: direct instruction, publishing, workshops, and media.

Vermeille is deeply invested in the Fort Lauderdale area and the broader Haitian diaspora, seeking to create opportunities that extend beyond the classroom. By hosting workshops and community events, the business fosters an environment where children and adults can collaborate and learn, building a network of informed citizens prepared to engage thoughtfully with AI.

Program participants—both students and their families—demonstrate increased confidence in understanding technology and applying AI concepts to real-world scenarios. Families report that children who engage with Vermeille's curriculum develop a more sophisticated and less fearful relationship with technology, viewing AI as a tool within their control rather than as an external force beyond their comprehension.

A comprehensive educational model

Vermeille's educational model is distinctive. Unlike many tech education programs that focus narrowly on coding or robotics, Doctor Vermeille Global EDTECH & Research LLC emphasizes a comprehensive understanding of how AI impacts every aspect of life, from healthcare and education to work and culture.

This approach ensures that learners are not passive consumers of technology but active participants and creators who understand AI's potential, its limitations, and their own responsibility to use it wisely.

Inspiring the next generation of leaders

For Joseph Vermeille, the ultimate goal is to inspire a generation of leaders who are not only proficient in AI but passionate about using it to advance human flourishing and social good. He dreams of a future where today's students become tomorrow's innovators, educators, policymakers, and ethical guardians of technology.

As Doctor Vermeille Global EDTECH remains focused on his mission.

continues to grow, Vermeille re-

"Our kids are the future," he says with conviction. "Our responsibility is to prepare them for a world that is changing faster than ever before—and to equip families and communities with the wisdom to navigate it together."

In a field often viewed through the lens of complexity and inaccessibility, Joseph Vermeille is proving that with the right guidance, authentic curriculum, and a commitment to human dignity, even the youngest among us—and their families—can lead in an AI-powered future.

AI Lakay Nou: Bringing AI education to the Haitian diaspora

Beyond classroom and community workshops, Vermeille extends his reach through "AI Lakay Nou" (AI in Our Homes), a bilingual radio program broadcast every Thursday from 2–3 PM EST on WSRF 1580 AM (North Miami). In collaboration with Build a Better Tomorrow, the program presents AI-literacy content in both Haitian Creole and English, ensuring that the Haitian diaspora and global Haitian community have access to critical AI education.

The program's companion website, ailakaynou.com, offers AI news, tutorials, and resources along with archives of all episodes. Every show is available on YouTube, extending the reach beyond the live broadcast and allowing families to engage with the content on their own schedules.
